

THE CENTER FOR TROPICAL ECOLOGY & CONSERVATION & ANTIOCH UNIVERSITY NEW ENGLAND

PRESENTS:

Environmental Education in Belize Two Decades of Reaching Out to Belizeans

Please Join Speaker
Amy Bodwel

Thursday, December 11, 2008
Sci Lab 2 at 11:30 am - 12:30 pm

Amy's talk will focus on the programs developed at the Belize Zoo in the 80s and early 90s while she served as Assistant Director, then move forward to the work the Belize zoo does now. After working in Belize, Amy received her Masters in Environmental Studies from Antioch New England and then began a 12 year career at the Chicago Zoological Society/Brookfield Zoo where she was involved in many of their programs. Amy currently serves as a consultant to Talking Conservation, an organization working on values-based communications in the Gulf of Maine. She also continues to serve on the Foreign Board of Directors for the Belize Zoo.

This is a brown bag series event and is open to the public...all are welcome!
